Thanks for being a great cousin Chris! We always had great conversations. We ran into each other occasionally, but the most memorable was at a yard sale. The owner of the residence put up a sign that they would return after work. Chris pretty much camped out in his yard, as you could see all the tools and such on sale through the glass in the garage doors. Chris and Jess later told me that the guy even let them in the house to bid on items! Chris really told the whole story with such excitement and I couldnt do the story justice it deserves. Among the items acquired was a stuffed squirrel I think. He told me that they put it in Julies car as a prank on a few occasions. He really enjoyed telling me that with a smile and almost a rolling laugh. You will be missed and remembered by many.
