Tribute to All Farmers
By, Loren Knicely
I am only a farmer. I know nature better than anyone. I work with the soil, the rain, the sun, the wind, the heat and the cold. I enjoy them and sometimes fear them. I am only a farmer. I am a tenant of God's earth. I am a sower of seeds, a shepherd of livestock, a reaper of harvest. I am sweat, tears, and pride. I am only a farmer. I am warm memories of the past and hopeful dreams of the future. I am an optimist, a thinker, a watcher and a doer. I am only a farmer. I am a manager, an accountant, a veterinarian, a mechanic and a carpenter. I am a seller, a trader and a buyer. I am a father, a friend, a comforter and a teacher to my children. I am only a farmer. If a man can be truly free, then truly I am. I do not work by a time clock. I can choose the hours I work. They are mine to spend. They are mine to invest. They are mine to use wisely. I am only a farmer. Since I am self-employed, I must use wisely; my intelligence, my confidence, my ingenuity and my patience. I am not a man of riches, but a man with a great wealth of experience. I have learned to treasure life and all living things, to respect their maker and my own. I am only a farmer. Unlike our government and many other large corporations, we are efficient. I am part of a minority of 2% and we produce enough to feed the world. So, the next time you get behind some slow-moving farm machinery, don't complain too much (especially on a full stomach). I am only a farmer. I live in a complicated world, but enjoy the simple things in life. They are my source of joy, hope and comfort. I have walked in the morning mist, and paused to marvel at the beauty of sunsets. I listen to the cheerful sounds of the songbirds. I enjoy the fragrance of fresh-cut hay. I am only a farmer. It is a solitary profession I have chosen, or perhaps that I have been chosen for. A profession where there are no certainties, where no guarantees are granted and no excuses taken. I am only a farmer. I know of no other profession which is closer to God's handiwork. I am awed by endless rebirth, and marvel as small seeds turn into a bountiful harvest. I witness many miracles. I am only a farmer. I have but God to answer to, to depend on, to confide in. And in the quiet of the years, I have come to know Him well. I believe Sunday is a day we should go to church to worship and to sing, and to give thanks for all the blessings to us He brings. I think that everyone should be PROUD of their many accomplishments! I once thought that being a farmer didn't sound like a highly skilled profession, until I met a special friend, who told me that I should be very proud that I am only a farmer, and I will endure. P.S. Lucky for this farmer, that the special friend is now my dear wife!
